Learning Objective: To be able to understand the importance of a book cover.

Written work to be completed in full sentences.

Use blue or black ink only.

Pencils to be used for diagrams or drawings.

Colours

The colours used on a book cover are very important; colours can be used to give a sense of the overall mood of the book or to indicate who the book is aimed at. For example, red might be used to indicate danger, or fear. Blue could be used to indicate that the book was written to appeal to boys.

Images

Indicate the challenge of the task with a chilli drawing.

Without giving anything away, the publisher will put images on the front cover to indicate what the story is about. For example, the front cover of The Hobbit shows a dragon hoarding his treasure, whilst a small invisible figure is trying to get to the treasure.
